Thoughts on Back to School

As we begin this unprecedented school year, expect the unexpected. Our roles may change, as our world has changed. Collecting and analyzing data will help you identify and assess your program. Take the time to record what you are asked to do and what you are doing in the months ahead. This valuable information will guide you as the school year unfolds. It can be as easy as keeping a running record in a book or you can use data collection models found here:
